Martinelli Luce

The multitasking Clochard (French for lamp) is a lamp, table, coin catchall, and nightstand. Inspired by the smartphone, this jaunty chameleon responds to several needs. Its single leg and squared-off back allows the 38½-inch-tall piece to lean practically anywhere, and embedded LED technology keeps it conveniently lit—without any special wiring. 39-583-496254; martinelliluce.it.

Jallu Ebenistes

In 2006, after many years in New York City, Yann and Sandra Jallu relocated to Brittany. Their atelier has mastered various materials once favored by Art Deco designers, such as parchment, horn, and shagreen. The museum-quality Gypse cabinet gets its mother-of-pearl-like finish from a layer of carefully honed gypsum. Constructed of chrome, brass, sycamore, and marble, the unit is about 34 inches high, 31½ wide, and 12 deep. Through Bespoke Global, 212-537-0112; bespokeglobal.com. circle 498

Unda

Named for the Greek god of the frigid north wind and bringer of winter, the Boreas sideboard was designed to possess a similarly forceful mien. Detailing and metallic finishes recall ice structures. The exterior is silver-lacquered wood; the glass-shelved interior is lined in copper- and silver-lacquered wood. And at 94½ inches long, 31½ high, and 25 deep, it's titanically proportioned. undadesign.wordpress.com. circle 502

Chakib Richani

With its chamfered surface in icy, mirror-finish stainless steel resting atop stacked prisms of the same material, the Tectonic dining table earns its name: It's meant to evoke the earth's geological plates, which float above the mantle and constantly shift against one another. The 29½-inch-high table measures 155 inches long and 47 wide. 961-5-808140; chakibrichanicollection.com. circle 501

Altreforme

From the Dreams collection, Pter Perbellini's Venice table is crafted in aluminum. This malleable and ecofriendly material speaks to the company's expertise in metal-shaping as well as its talent for creating unique and personalized custom pieces. Available in black and white or custom colors, the table is 78½ inches long, 38½ wide, and 29 tall. 39-341-6381; altreforme.com. circle 500

Cassina

Classic, whimsical, and opulent, the Volage bed by Philippe Starck features the icon's trademark flair for dramatic proportions. The outside headboard comes upholstered in leather or quilted fabric; the frame rests on slender aluminum legs. Volage can be fitted with built-in reading lamps or specified with a matching chest and bedside table. 212-245-2121; cassina.com. circle 499
